Here is another example of creating similar objects. For this one, I first used a Gradient tool to add a grayish line in the background. I then free drawn similar objects that I would like to use in the final product. As I created the objects, I sketched them on a separate layer. To combine similar objects, I first selected the pencil tool on the pencil tool bar, then stuck to the pencil tool set to Auto-smooth. At this point, I only selected the objects that I would use. I then selected the Lasso tool on the tool bar and drew a free-form lasso around the objects. I then merged with the Selection tool.

Lastly, I duplicated the layer, changed the blending mode to Multiply and used the color correction tools to make changes to the colors of the image. I also used settings similar to Sketch. In this activity, I merged the layers to get the final product.
